

January 2012

A Moment of Respect for Dr. William Cockburn

Dr. William Cockburn lost his battle with a dreadful disease last week.

He was a brilliant and courageous champion for Breast Thermography.

I was privileged to have studied Breast Thermography with him four and a half years ago. I took his certification training twice to be sure I deeply understood. He also helped me find a fantastic thermography camera of my own, the best on the market.

I will always be grateful for his words of encouragement. He was a wonderful teacher and a sensitive human being. He will be greatly missed.

Diane Jordan DC